The Instructors

Jennifer Boniface, MS

Jennifer Boniface is an animal nutritionist, who holds both a Bachelors Degree (BS) in Animal Science and a Masters Degree (MS), in Animal Nutrition Science. Both degrees are from the University of Maryland. Her graduate research specialized in canine diets. Her thesis project, conducted through the Nutrition Lab at the National Zoo in Washington, D.C., focused on the formulation and analysis of a special diet to help control urinary stones and other health problems in an endangered canid species, called the maned wolf.

Scott B. Sanderson, DVM

Dr. Sanderson became an animal healer graduating from the University of Minnesota in Veterinary Medicine in 1984. He is a certified Veterinary Acupuncturist, has completed NAET training and is a member of the American Holistic Veterinary Medical Association, American Academy of Veterinary Acupuncturists, the AVMA and AAHA. He is a local resident of Howard County, and in 1991 served as the President of the Howard County Veterinary Medical Association.

Alison Key, DVM

Dr. Key became interested in Traditional Chinese Medicine during her undergraduate years at the University of Maryland while taking Tai Chi. After graduating from the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine in 2002; she completed her certification to be a veterinary acupuncturist. She is a member of the International Veterinary Acupuncture Society and the American Academy of Veterinary Acupuncturists.

Christina Chambreau, DVM

Christina Chambreau, DVM is founder and past-Chair of the Academy of Veterinary Homeopathy. She teaches throughout North America and has been practicing Homeopathy for 20 years. She recently authored The Healthy Animal's Journal: What You Can Do to Have Your Dog or Cat Live A Long and Healthy Life.

"A dynamic teacher! You remember what she says because she graphically represents material with her enthusiastic manner."

Holistic Health Care for Pets Summer Courses 2008

Course Descriptions

Real Food for Real Pets: Introduction to Animal Nutrition

Instructor: Jennifer Boniface, MS

Prerequisite: None.

Description: This course begins with a brief history of the pet food industry, the difference in anatomy and physiology among herbivores, carnivores, and omnivores. Species-appropriate food and the pros and cons of various feeding options are covered.

Apprehensions about diet changes are addressed along with some practical methods for transitioning to a better diet. Information about supplements and specific health problems is also provided.

Traditional Chinese Medicine for Pets: A Practical Introduction

Instructors: Scott B Sanderson, DVM CVA, Alison Ryan Key, DVM CVA

Prerequisite: None.

Description: This course begins with an overview of the theory of this ancient system of healing. You will learn about the Meridians and the acupuncture points. The nutritional component of TCM will be covered, including herbology and food therapy.

Introduction to Homeopathic Animal Care

Instructor: Christina Chambreau, DVM

Prerequisite: None.

Description: Open to professionals and non-professionals, this comprehensive course will teach you the history, philosophy, and basics of homeopathy as applied to animal care. You will learn the treatment of acute problems and be introduced to the treatment of chronic problems. Vaccinations, nutrition, and the current best recommendations will also be covered. This course will give you a new understanding of health for animals and people.

Intermediate Homeopathic Animal Care

Instructor: Christina Chambreau, DVM

Prerequisite: Introduction to Homeopathic Animal Care or consent of instructor.

Description: This course provides an overview of treating chronic disease in animals. You will learn: how to take a case and evaluate the symptoms; how to use the repertory and "translate" it for use with animals; how to analyze the case and use the materia medica to select the best remedy; how to choose the correct potency; and, most important, how to evaluate an animal's response to treatment. You will also get plenty of practice working on cases provided by the instructor and by fellow classmates. (This course will include a review of the basic principles.)

Case Studies for Beginning Students

Instructor: Christina Chambreau, DVM

Prerequisite: Intermediate Homeopathic Animal Care.

Description: Cases, Cases, Cases. Using the skills you have learned in the intermediate class, practice on real life cases.

Case Studies in Animal Homeopathy (Advanced)

Instructor: Christina Chambreau, DVM

Prerequisite: Intermediate Homeopathic Animal Care, Dr. Richard Pitcairn's year-long course, or other comprehensive training.

Description: This interactive course is for those who already use the repertory and have been prescribing for animals at the chronic disease level for at least a few months. Even experienced prescribers can benefit from analyzing cases and tapping into the expertise of fellow prescribers. Bring cases for which you are not getting the results you desire. Maybe you are confused about the response to the remedy, the remedy selection itself, or deciding when to rescribe. Together, we will deepen our ability to treat animals homeopathically.

Homeopathic Animal Care and Holistic Health Care for Pets are programs of Prince Georges Feral Friends, SPCA, Inc., a non-profit organization incorporated in the state of Maryland, with a mission to improve the lives of free-roaming cats and promote the use of holistic health care. Contributions are tax deductible.

Bowie

Bowie enjoys a rich and diverse historic and cultural heritage. The original Belair Estate contains the Belair Mansion (circa 1745), the beautiful five-part Georgian plantation house of Governor Samuel Ogle, and his son Governor Benjamin Ogle. The Mansion was also the home of William Woodward, a famous horseman in the first half of the 20th Century. Restored to reflect its 250-year-old legacy, the Mansion is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Belair Stable, on the Estate, was part of the famous "Belair Stud", one of the premier racing stables in the 1930's, 40's, and 50's, and owned and operated by William Woodward. Until its closing in 1957, Belair was the oldest continually operated thoroughbred horse farm in the country. It is said that the blood of Belair horses flows through the veins of every American race horse of distinction.

In addition to its thoroughbred horse breeding heritage, Bowie is also historically associated with railroading. The town grew up around the Bowie Station, and emerged as an important rail town. Honoring that tradition, the City has preserved this piece of its history in the Huntington Railroad Museum which includes historic materials displayed in the Station's restored railroad buildings.

While the City is proud of its heritage, it is also focused on the future. It has grown from a small agricultural and railroad town to one of the largest and fastest growing cities in Maryland.

Bowie is a city of 16 square miles and approximately 50,000 residents. It has nearly 2,000 acres set aside as parks or open space. It has 72 ball fields, three community centers, an ice arena, a theatrical playhouse, a golf course, and three museums. The City has recently added a state-of-the-art senior citizens center and a gymnasium for community programs. The City of Bowie is a dynamic, family-oriented community whose residents enjoy an exceptional quality of life. The City's motto of "Growth, Unity and Progress" provides a fitting description of this municipality at the start of a new century.

Museums

The City of Bowie operates the Belair Mansion, the Belair Stable Museum and the Bowie Railroad Station and Huntington Museum, their collections and exhibits. The City joins with the Radio History Society to present the Radio and Television Museum. The Museum Staff is assisted by The Friends of Belair Estate, the Huntington Heritage Society, and the Heritage Committee, as well as the Radio History Society and the Prince George's County Genealogical Society, in this mission. The Director may be reached by calling 301-809-3088.
